

National Chung Hsing University Notice about Reproduction of Library Collection

Published and implemented after approval by the Library Director on 16 April 2008

Dear Readers,

When you reproduce any information under the collection of our library (photocopy, printing, scanning or reproduction), please pay due care to the following and do not violate any regulation related to intellectual property right.

1. In using any information of the library, please duly comply with the Copyright Law and relevant regulations and engage in reproductions within a reasonable scope of use.
2. Permitted Scope: Published information only provided and circulated under the library collection.
3. Prohibited Scope: Special collection and collection with review restrictions. If the library's administration considers that the paper or binding is subject to damage, affecting the maintenance or viewing of the library collection, reproduction may be prohibited.
4. Please comply with the Copyright Law. Information reproduction should be limited to a portion of a books or a single article in a periodical. Each person should print no more than one copy.
5. Reproduction of any collection in the library's special collection is subject to relevant management rules.
6. Reproduction of library information is limited to academic research purpose. No reproduction, publishing, sale shall be allowed to avoid infringement upon the author's right.
7. To respect intellectual property right, any violation of any relevant provision that is confirmed will lead to suspension of user right. The reader will bear sole relevant legal liability.